D.C. CAR CHASE TURNS FATAL

A wrecked Capitol Police car blocks Constitution Avenue N.W. after gunshots were reported on Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C., Thursday. A woman with a year-old child led Secret Service and police on a harrowing car chase from the White House, past the Capitol, before she was shot to death, police said. The child survived. A police officer was reported injured in the incident, which saw the entire complex locked down, at least temporarily derailing debate over how to end a government shutdown. Story, page 5. More schools on alert as RCMP seek sex offender

On the loose. Students in west-central Sask. go in lockdown mode amid reports of sightings linked to Edmonton man

Schools in several west-central Saskatchewan communities locked their doors and kept children inside on Thursday after a warning about a potentially violent high-risk sex offender.

RCMP in Kindersley said there had been two unconfirmed sightings of a vehicle connected to Michael Sean Stanley. There were also reports that Stanley may have been seen on foot in the Kindersley area Thursday afternoon.

"The RCMP have advised that all three Kindersley schools, Rossville School in Coleville, Eston Composite School, Westcliffe Composite School in Marengo, Eaton School in Eatonia and Northwest Central School in Plenty go into lockdown procedures," said Sun West School Division spokeswoman Roxan Foursha.

"RCMP have advised that we will be on alert like this for at least the next 24 hours unless that person is apprehended. They'll let us know."

Mounties said there was also a possible sighting of Stanley in Rosetown, just east of Kindersley. An elementary school in Rosetown put protection measures in place, too.

Stanley has a long history of sex offences, including taking children from playgrounds.

The Edmonton man's electronic monitoring bracelet was found Tuesday on the roof of a business in Lloydminster — it had been cut off.

Foursha said school buses would not be running after school Thursday. "RCMP advise that parents must come to the school and pick up their children and pick up only their own children," she said.

Foursha could not say how many students were affected. Four of the schools have students from kindergarten to Grade 12, but even those older students need to be picked up by parents, she said.

Public schools in Lloydminster, on the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary, locked their doors and kept children inside Wednesday amid concerns that Stanley may have been in the area.

The Lloydminster Public School Division lifted those restrictions Thursday morning after the RCMP said it's very likely that Stanley was no longer in the city. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sole occupant

Man killed in flip over Circle Drive

A 35-year-old Saskatoon man is dead after a pickup truck fell off an overpass on Thursday morning.

The man was the lone occupant, heading southbound on Circle Drive East at about 5:15 a.m. when he struck a median.

"It left Circle Drive over the side and in the process flipped, landing on its roof," said police spokeswoman Alyson Edwards.

The man was pronounced dead at the scene below the bridge on 14th Street East. The cause is under investigation.

No sentence yet in landfill baby case

Sentencing has been delayed a third time for a 19-year-old Saskatoon woman charged with sending her stillborn baby to a landfill three years ago.

The woman, who cannot be named because she was a youth at the time, had a court appearance waived on Thursday by a provincial judge and is expected to be sentenced on Oct. 18.

The sentencing had been delayed in August when her lawyer, Leslie Sullivan, requested a psychiatric assessment. The court heard on Thursday that they're still waiting for it. METRO

Exercise Domino. Drill to test preparedness at multiple levels, expose possible flaws in system

morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

The City of Saskatoon is getting ready for disaster.

Officials from Saskatoon's Emergency Measures Organization (EMO) announced on Thursday that the city will soon run its largest-ever disaster-preparedness exercise.

Titled Exercise Domino, the drill will take place from Oct. 7 to 10 and will test 30 private and government-run organizations in their responses to an all-hazards, full-scale emergency.

"We've always focused on emergency planning and emergency response as being a single site and almost like a single organization," said Ray Unrau, Saskatoon's municipal emergency-planning director, at city hall.

The exercise — a collaboration between four different organizations — will include an evacuation aspect, a wide-scale rescue component and a recovery phase involving approximately 200 residents.

Officials hope the drill will highlight the city's supports and what it might need from higher levels of government during a disaster.

"Every organization has a plan that is so tight and seems so up-to-speed, but as soon as you start putting plans together between organizations, that's where those gaps exist," Unrau explained.

While Exercise Domino is a drill, residents are advised that they might notice additional firefighting and police activity during the evacuation and rescue components.

Keep it together

"What we want to start thinking about is the role that everybody plays in emergency response."

Tweed Ride. Socializing the old-fashioned way

Saskatoon cyclists will soon pedal through time.

Scheduled for Sunday, the first Tweed Ride is described by organizers as a chance to hit the road in fashions that were popular when the bicycle was considered mainstream transportation.

"We need to take the streets back," said Sharon Elder, an organizing committee member.

Some say it's a chance for cyclists to socialize in a way that was common in the past, but may seem odd today.

"I think we've strayed a long way from what people used to consider normal," said cyclist Ted Popel. MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

Is the Roughriders' image damaged?

With three Saskatchewan Roughriders players facing assault charges and the CFL fining quarterback Darian Durant for an offensive tweet, it seems as though Rider Nation has hit a rough patch. Metro took to the streets in Saskatoon and Regina to find out whether fans think their favourite football brand has been tarnished.

MARCO VIGLIOTTI AND JACOB MORGAN
saskatoon@metronews.ca

Darcy Dumont, 20, student, Regina

"Maybe a little. I think it reflects more on the individual players than the team itself. If the organization itself came out and started doing some controversial and offensive things, then of course it would start tarnishing it."

Holly Breton, 35, hotel employee, Saskatoon

"I don't think so. I just don't think it's anybody's business. It's their own personal time. Everybody should take pride in (the Riders). I mean, it's Saskatchewan and they're the only football team we have. We should support them."

Jordan Grebinsky, 21, education student, Regina

"I don't think so. I'll still cheer for them. If it kept happening, then it would affect me. But if it's a one-time thing, I still support them. People make mistakes."

Alison Williams, 44, library clerk, Saskatoon

"Yes, I would say it's definitely hurting their image. The behaviour of anyone on the team can affect the overall image the team has. In the long run, it probably won't have a lot of effect — but in the short term, it might make people think twice about their support."

Mike Allan, 21, kinesiology student, Regina

"I don't know if it affects the Riders. They are the main reason the CFL is what it is. It affects the persona of the players. When you are a professional athlete, you need to realize what you're doing before you do it. You have to accept the repercussions."

Justin Baker, 26, cashier, Saskatoon

"Maybe they should watch their step, but they are testosterone-filled guys playing a rough and tough game. I want the team to be tough in some ways, but … I don't want them hurting citizens. They do have to realize they are in the public spotlight."

Off-field troubles won't tarnish Riders' brand, says U of S marketing professor

The reputation of the Saskatchewan Roughriders is far too resilient to be tarnished by recent off-field actions of some of its players, says a University of Saskatchewan marketing professor.

"What the individual player does, I don't think will necessarily damage the Riders brand because the brand is so well-established," Susan McDonald, assistant professor at the University of Saskatchewan's Edwards School of Business, said on Thursday.

"The Riders have enormous social capital."

After a near-perfect 8-1 start to this CFL season, the famed Roughriders franchise appears under siege on and off the field.

During the team's current four-game losing skid, three players were charged with assault after a brawl at a Regina nightclub in August. And on Wednesday, quarterback Darian Durant was fined by the league for a profane tweet to a fan who had berated him for his recent play.

But McDonald said the Riders brand won't be dragged into the dirt by these off-field woes because no one player is seen as the undisputed face of the franchise, which has transformed into an almost leaderless "religion" for some.

Rough enough

"The Riders have enormous social capital."

Susan McDonald, assistant professor at the University of Saskatchewan's Edwards School of Business

"The brand is bigger than the individual players," she said. "In some cases, the brand becomes even bigger than the team."

Instead of morphing into a popular vehicle for a certain player or roster, McDonald said the Roughriders brand has become deeply intertwined with the province's self-image of a rugged and humble underdog.

"Parts of the Rider identity are rooted in our long-standing perception of us as an underdog, have-not province," she said.

"We band together and we support our team."

Two Canadians, entire Greenpeace crew charged

Two Canadians are among those facing prosecution after Russian investigators say they charged the entire crew of the Greenpeace ship Arctic Sunrise with piracy for a protest at a Russian oil platform.

The crew includes Alexandre Paul of Montreal and Paul Ruzycki of Port Colborne, Ont., and the charge they both face can result in a 15-year prison term upon conviction.

Greenpeace denies any wrongdoing and describes the charges as absurd. The mother of one of the Canadians says they make no sense.

"I think we can agree that piracy involves weapons and taking control of another vessel. Greenpeace did nothing like that," Paul's mother, Nicole Paul, said in a phone interview from Pike River, Que.

Nicole Paul said her son has travelled the globe the last seven years to defend his ideals and that he once spent a night in prison in Scotland before being released without charge.

"Nothing has ever happened like this. They're being treated like terrorists."

She said the activists were protesting peacefully.

In Russia, the Investigative Committee said in a statement that the piracy charge was filed Thursday against 16 members of the crew, including a prominent Russian freelance photographer. The crew's other 14 members were similarly charged Wednesday.

Census protester won't back down, pleads not guilty

'I am ashamed of my prime minister.'

89-year-old objects to U.S. company's involvement in Canadian process; Crown says no lawful excuse for refusal

A defiant octogenarian pleaded not guilty Thursday to criminal charges arising out of her refusal to fill out the 2011 census, and said she would not pay any fine if convicted.

Audrey Tobias, 89, of Toronto, told an Ontario court she agreed with the aims of the census, but objected to the involvement of American arms behemoth Lockheed Martin.

Quoted

"Of course, I would not pay (a) fine — that would be an admission of guilt." Audrey Tobias

"When I learned that the contract for the information technology was being given to a foreign company, I was shocked," Tobias testified.

"I am ashamed of my prime minister … who ultimately made the decision. Because of that, I couldn't fill it in."

Tobias is charged with violating the Statistics Act.

The defence maintained that forcing her to complete the census would violate her freedoms of conscience and free expression.

Judge Ramez Khawly was clearly skeptical as lawyer Peter Rosenthal made his arguments, and wondered aloud what would happen if the court sent a "signal" that it was OK to opt out of the census.

The Crown said Tobias had no lawful excuse for her refusal.

Tobias said she was unconcerned about the consequences of a conviction, which carries a maximum three months in prison. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Police investigate after 6 severed cat heads found

Cat owners in a community north of Toronto are being warned to keep their pets indoors after a number of severed cat heads were found.

York Regional Police said Thursday there have been six recent incidents in Whitchurch-Stouffville where heads and, in one case, other body parts of a dismembered cat were found in public locations.

Investigators don't know what the motive behind the dismemberments could be, said Const. Andy Pattenden.

But he said it's believed the dismemberments were done intentionally, adding the heads were all placed within a one-kilometre area in residential neighbourhoods.

The first incident was reported Aug. 12 when a head and two legs were found near a daycare centre. Five other cat heads were found during the next few weeks, with one being found near a school, and the last incident was reported on Sept. 13, when a homeowner found her cat's head in front of her residence.

Woman shot dead in D.C. ramming spree

White House to Capitol Hill. Driver tried to break through security with an infant inside the vehicle

A woman with a year-old child led Secret Service and police on a harrowing car chase from the White House past the Capitol on Thursday, attempting to penetrate the security barriers at both national landmarks before she was shot to death, police said. The child survived.

"I'm pretty confident this was not an accident," said Metropolitan Police Chief Cathy Lanier. Still, Capitol Police said there appeared to be no terrorist link. Authorities would not say whether the woman had been armed.

Tourists, congressional staff and even some senators watched as a caravan of law-enforcement vehicles chased a car down the street outside the Capitol.

House and Senate lawmakers, inside debating how to end a government shutdown, briefly shuttered their chambers as Capitol Police shut down the building.

"There were multiple shots fired, and the air was filled with gunpowder."

Witness Berin Szoka, whose office overlooks the shooting scene

The woman's car at one point had been surrounded by police cars and she managed to escape, careening around a traffic circle and past the north side of the Capitol.

Video shot by a TV cameraman showed police pointing firearms at her car before she rammed a Secret Service vehicle and continued driving. Lanier said police shot and killed her a block northeast of the historic building.

One Secret Service member and a veteran of the Capitol Police were injured.

U.S. shutdown. Americans learn that, yeah, the feds run a whole bunch of stuff

Americans are finding their lives upended in startling ways by the government shutdown now in its third day. Weddings are in peril, vacations are ruined and a farmer can't even cash a cheque.

The federal government, people are learning, comprises a lot more than the stereotypical faceless bureaucrat.

About 800,000 of those workers, from tax agents to janitors, are bearing the brunt of the shutdown, forced to stay home without pay.

Two dozen October weddings, including nine this week, are in jeopardy because they're scheduled for closed-off monument sites in Washington. The same was true for a couple planning to marry at the Grand Canyon.

Or consider the Wisconsin farmer who can't cash a cheque for a cow he sold.

Ben Brancel, the state's agriculture secretary, said that because the farmer has a federal loan, he can't cash the cheque without both his own signature and one from a Farm Service Agency official.

American Indian tribes, who rely more heavily on federal subsidies, are coping with disrupted services including foster-care payments, nutrition programs and financial assistance for the needy.

Some tribes intend to fill the gap in federal funds themselves, risking deficits of their own to cushion communities with chronic high unemployment and poverty.

Also taking a hit is the federal Head Start program that provides pre-school, meals and health care to more than a million low-income children a year.

Aspiring home owners applying for a mortgage can expect delays, especially if the shutdown is prolonged.

One possible silver lining: The whole thing could serve as a teachable moment for all those people who tell pollsters they want budget cuts — as long as they aren't directly affected. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Doc proves poop pills not a load of crap

Not ready for mass production. Each patient administered own set of capsules

Forget the enema bag and the tube that snakes down the throat to the intestines. The future of treatment for persistent C. difficile infections may come in pill form.

A Calgary doctor who has been treating difficult-to-cure C. difficile for years with fecal transplants is reporting he has created what are in essence poop pills — and they do the trick.

Infectious diseases expert Dr. Tom Louie, a pioneer in the use of fecal transplants for C. difficile in Canada, has treated 27 patients with his handmade pills, and all 27 were cleared of their infections.

"They came in for lunch on an empty stomach … and took 24 to 30 pills on average," Louie said of the regimen, which he described to fellow scientists at the IDWeek conference in San Francisco on Thursday.

Louie, who teaches at the University of Calgary, said he saw no side effects, and the regime was well tolerated by patients.

Louie said he is working with collaborators in Britain to try to determine which bacteria are key to re-establishing a healthy balance in the gut, with the aim of moving to a pill treatment that wouldn't have to be tailor-made for each patient.

Heroin for some addicts. Ottawa closes 'loopholes' in special access program

Health Minister Rona Ambrose says she's banning certain drugs from a federal special access program.

They will include products containing heroin, unauthorized forms of cocaine and other restricted drugs, such as ecstasy and LSD.

Ambrose says those drugs won't be authorized for patients under new regulations that take effect immediately.

She says the ban won't affect clinical trials or university research.

Hundreds dead or missing as migrant ship sinks off Italy

Tragedy. Boat carried nearly 500 from Eritrea, Ghana and Somalia; only three of the 100 women were rescued, no children

It was the third ship of the night to head toward the tiny Italian island of Lampedusa packed to the brim with migrants seeking a better life in Europe. The first, filled with Syrians, arrived about 10 p.m. The second, carrying Eritreans, slipped in at 2 a.m. The third never reached the shore.

At least 114 people died and at least 200 were still unaccounted for late Thursday after a crowded fishing boat carrying African migrants from Tripoli caught fire, flipped over and sank.

In the dark of night, hundreds of men, women and children who didn't know how to swim were flung into the sea about a half-mile from Lampedusa. Between 450 and 500 people were believed to be on board; only 159 were rescued.

After the boat started taking on water, someone on board set a fire to get the attention of passing ships. The flames spread and panicked passengers surged to one side to avoid the fire. The 20 metre vessel the capsized.

Pietro Bartolo, of Lampedusa, said the death toll would certainly rise as search operations continued.

"It's an immense tragedy," said Giusi Nicolini, mayor of Lampedusa.

It was one of the deadliest accidents in the perilous Mediterranean Sea crossing that thousands make every year, seeking a new life in the prosperous European Union. Smugglers charge thousands of dollars a head to take people to Europe aboard overcrowded, barely seaworthy boats.

Lampedusa, 113 km off Tunisia and closer to Africa than the Italian mainland, has been at the centre of illegal immigration. Pope Francis, who visited Lampedusa in July to bemoan the frequent deaths of migrants, sent his condolences.

Guantanamo Bay prison.
Mentally ill man jailed for 11 years could be released

The U.S. government has dropped its opposition to releasing a Guantanamo Bay prisoner with severe mental and physical illnesses, apparently conceding the argument that he is far too sick to keep locked up at the U.S. base in Cuba.

In court papers filed late Wednesday, lawyers for the Justice Department said the government would not object to a judge issuing a release order for Ibrahim Idris. The native of Sudan has been held for more than 11 years as an enemy combatant despite being diagnosed as mentally ill soon after his arrival at Guantanamo.

The court filing was couched in careful language that avoided saying why the government would no longer resist legal efforts to release Idris. It also stressed that the U.S. was not acknowledging it lacks the authority or evidence to hold him. Nevertheless, it was a rare and significant victory for a Guantanamo prisoner.

A federal judge must still issue the order before Idris can be released. The government has not said where he'll go, but it is likely he'll return to his native Sudan. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nigeria. Up to 16 killed as plane nosedives and crashes after takeoff

A chartered airplane nosedived into the ground and burst into flames near tanks of aviation fuel on the outskirts of Lagos, Nigeria, on Thursday, killing up to 16 people, officials said.

Six survivors were rushed to the hospital, two in critical condition, Joe Obi, spokesman for Nigeria's Aviation Ministry, told The Associated Press.

Obi said 14 people were killed on the aircraft that was carrying 20 people — 13 passengers and seven crew members.

However, Lagos state Deputy Gov. Victoria Adejoke Orelope-Adefulire told reporters that 13 people died and there were seven survivors.

Later, Capt. Usman Muktar, commissioner of the Accident Investigation and Prevention Bureau investigating the accident, said there were only four survivors. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fukushima plant reports another contaminated leak

Another day, another radioactive-water spill. The operator of the meltdown-plagued Fukushima Dai-ichi nuclear plant says at least 430 litres spilled when workers overfilled a storage tank without a gauge that could have warned them of the danger.

The amount is tiny compared to the untold thousands of tons of radioactive water that have leaked, much of it into the Pacific Ocean, since a massive earthquake and tsunami wrecked the plant in 2011. But the error is one of many the operator has committed as it struggles to manage a seemingly endless, tainted flow.

Plant operator Tokyo Electric Power Co. said Thursday workers detected the water spilling from the top of one tank when they were patrolling the site the night before. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Former warlords to run in Afghan election

After Hamid Karzai.
Candidate claims he can unite ethnic groups in war-torn country

Two former Afghan warlords announced Thursday that they will share a ticket — one for president, the other for vice-president — in next year's elections, a vote that will help shape the country's future following the departure of foreign combat troops.

Abdul Rab Rasoul Sayyaf, an influential lawmaker and religious scholar, registered his candidacy for the presidency for the April 5 election.

Another former warlord, former energy and water minister Ismail Khan, will run as Sayyaf's first vice-president, and a little-known member of Afghanistan's upper house, Abdul Wahab Irfan, as second vice-president.

"We will move to unite Afghanistan. If the nation is together and has the same voice, problems can be solved," Sayyaf said.

Registration expires Oct. 6, and four presidential candidates and their respective vice-presidents have signed up so far.

The most prominent is former foreign minister Abdullah Abdullah, who was the runner-up to President Hamid Karzai in the 2009 elections and dropped out just ahead of a runoff vote following allegations of massive fraud in the first round.

Karzai can't run for a third consecutive term and has not yet endorsed anyone. There are no clear favourites, but speculation in recent days has focused on Foreign Minister Zalmai Rassoul, who may wind up as a consensus candidate, and Karzai's older brother Quayum, who is a businessman and politician.

Billions of dollars in funds pledged to Afghanistan are tied to the government's holding transparent and credible elections, a challenge in a country rife with patronage and corruption and a resilient Taliban insurgency. The Taliban have asked people not to vote and do not recognize the election process. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unifying a fractious country

Ethnically fractious, Afghan politics are marked by patronage and alliances among the elite — a group that includes warlords and tribal elders who can marshal votes among the country's various ethnic groups. The population of 31 million is roughly 42 per cent Pashtun, 27 per cent Tajik, 9 per cent Hazara and 9 per cent Uzbek along with other, smaller factions. The Taliban are predominantly Pashtun.

Alliances among those groups are expected to generate coalitions that will vie for the powerful job of president.

Sayyaf and Khan are best known as warlords during Afghanistan's civil war from 1992 until the Taliban takeover in 1996, fighting on the side of the Northern Alliance against the Taliban. Previously, both also actively participated in the war against the Soviet occupation.

Sayyef, 67, is an Egyptian-trained religious scholar and ethnic Pashtun who was a lawmaker until he resigned to run for president.

Khan, who hails from Herat province, is a 67-year-old Tajik warlord. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pope follows in the footsteps of the Francisan friars

Sandals in a style worn by Franciscan friars are displayed for sale in a shop on October 3 in Assisi, Italy. Pope Francis is taking his vision of a church for the poor to the birthplace of his namesake, the Catholic saint who made solidarity with the destitute the focus of his mission. The Pope was set to travel Friday to the Italian hilltop town of Assisi to pray at the tomb of St. Francis and to deliver a much-anticipated speech on his vision for the Roman Catholic Church. Students, prof strip to protest new dress code

Students and a professor at a university in southern Hungary took off their clothes in class to protest the new dress code introduced by the institution's president.

Thursday's protest by around 10 male and female students and their speech instructor at the University of Kaposvar's arts school was prompted by rules announced this week including a ban on dresses showing too much cleavage, miniskirts, excessive makeup and flip-flops. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Girl, 18, pleads guilty to sex with girlfriend, 14

A teen accused of having sex with her underage girlfriend Thursday pleaded no contest — essentially conceding the charges without admitting guilt. Her attorney describes the plea deal as in her best interest.

Kaitlyn Hunt was charged in February with having sex with a 14-year-old female schoolmate. Hunt was 18 at the time.

Civil and gay-rights groups say that Hunt is being punished for behaviour that occurs at schools across the U.S. without resulting in criminal charges.

American Gambling Association goes all in with online ads

Not ready to fold 'em just yet. Internet poker has been outlawed in the U.S. since 2011, but the casino lobby is betting that can be changed

The American Gambling Association has bought ads on major websites framing Runner Runner, starring Ben Affleck, right, and Justin Timberlake, as a cautionary tale that underscores the need for Congress to legalize online poker. The film's writers say it's not a political parable. 20TH CENTURY FOX/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The thriller Runner Runner starring Justin Timberlake and Ben Affleck opens this weekend and it's already in the centre of the fight over U.S. online gambling regulation.

It might be news to Timberlake and Affleck, but the stars of gambling flick were playing key roles in the fight over online gambling regulation Thursday, before the movie even hit screens.

The American Gambling Association has bought ads on major websites including Twitter, Facebook and the IMDb movie database framing the film as a "cautionary tale" that points to the need for Congress to legalize online poker. The ads also pop up when people Google the movie's title.

The screenwriters have said their story of a young gambler pulled into the criminal dealings of an offshore poker site was never intended as a political parable. The film is scheduled to open later Thursday.

The Stop Predatory Gambling Foundation, a national non-profit, sent a letter to the casino lobby Thursday pointing to the writers' comments, and calling the ads dishonest. The group is demanding that the ads — one of which warns, "sometimes movie villains are real" — be taken down.

National director Les Bernal wrote that there was no reason to think shady offshore operations would disappear if online gambling was legalized in the U.S., and accused the casino lobby of wanting a cut of the illegal operators' business.

"Casino operators now hope to expand another key demographic to their base: young people, especially those of college age, which is why the AGA greedily seized upon Runner, Runner," Bernal wrote.

Internet poker, never fully legal, has been strictly outlawed since 2011, when the Department of Justice seized the domain names of the largest offshore sites catering to U.S. customers and blacked them out.

This crackdown, dubbed "black Friday," left poker fanatics with two options: Get dressed and visit a card room, or break the law and log into an offshore site.

Gay slurs hurled during Laramie Project play

A University of Mississippi professor says that a group of Ole Miss students, including football players, disrupted a production of a campus play with "hate speech" on Tuesday night.

Michael Barnett, the assistant theatre chair, said that several students in the play told him that audience members were disruptive and used "derogatory terms" for homosexuals during a production of The Laramie Project on campus.

Ole Miss coach Hugh Freeze confirmed to The Associated Press Thursday that football players were in the crowd. Barnett says a group of football players apologized after the play.

"Several of the students said they did not feel the apology was genuine," Barnett said.

"They seemed to feel that (the football players) didn't realize what it was that they were apologizing for."

Ole Miss chancellor Dan Jones and athletic director Ross Bjork released a joint statement on Thursday afternoon saying "we strongly condemn the behaviour exhibited Tuesday night."

The statement says that the incident included freshman athletes from several different sports and it was "clear that some students badly misrepresented the culture of this university."

"As a member of the Ole Miss family, each of us has a responsibility to be accountable for our actions, and these individuals will be held accountable," the statement said.

"Our investigation will determine the degree to which any and all students were involved."

Freeze tweeted on Thursday morning, "We certainly do not condone any actions that offend or hurt people in any way."

The Laramie Project is about reaction in the city following the 1998 murder of Matthew Shepard, a gay man in Wyoming.

The art of making a razor for the developing world

Marketing. In India, designing a relevant product meant going into people's homes to watch them shave

Procter & Gamble executives say it was striking the first time they witnessed a man shave while sitting barefoot on the floor in a tiny hut in India. He had no electricity, no running water and no mirror.

The 20 U.S.-based executives observed the man in 2008 during one of 300 visits they made to homes in rural India. The goal? To gain insights they could use to develop a new razor for India.

"That, for me, was a big 'a-ha,'" said Alberto Carvalho, vice-president, global Gillette, a unit of P&G. "I had never seen people shaving like that."

The visits kicked off the 18 months it took to develop Gillette Guard, a low-cost razor designed for India and other emerging markets. Introduced three years ago, Guard quickly gained market share and today represents two out of every three razors sold in India. The story of how Guard came to be illustrates the balance companies must strike when creating products for emerging markets: It's not as simple as slapping a foreign label on an U.S. product.

To successfully sell products overseas, particularly in developing markets, companies must tweak them so they're relevant to the people who live there. More firms will have to consider this as they move into emerging markets such as India, China and Brazil to offset slower growth in developed regions such as the U.S. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Streaming. Rdio debuts free mobile listening

Digital music service Rdio launched its free Internet radio service in the U.S. and Canada on Thursday. For now, the app that works on Apple and Android devices won't play ads between the songs that are randomly picked based on genres, artists, songs or albums. The company hopes nonpaying listeners will sign up for a $10-a-month subscription that adds features like the ability to pick and choose exact songs and albums.

BlackBerry. Rogers opts not to stock Z30 model

BlackBerry's latest device will arrive in Canadian stores later this month, but it won't have the support of one of the country's largest carriers — Rogers.

Rogers' decision not to stock the Z30 touchscreen model, which will become available in Canada on Oct. 15, comes as a surprise since the Toronto-based wireless and cable company was an early adopter of BlackBerry products.

Rogers also hosted the Canadian debut of the new generation of BlackBerry phones at its headquarters in February, with BlackBerry chief executive Thorsten Heins and Rogers head Nadir Mohamed posing for photos together.

Rogers already stocks BlackBerry's Z10 touchscreen phone, the Q10 keyboard version and a lower priced Q5 model but isn't adding the larger Z30, which is roughly the size of a Samsung Galaxy 4. "We believe we can fulfil our customers' demand for a BlackBerry device with our current lineup," said a Rogers spokeswoman in an email.

YOUTUBE GETS A FILM FEST

Just weeks after some of Hollywood's biggest names cleared town at the end of the Toronto International Film Festival, the city will soon be host to another barrage of visiting filmmakers attending a multi-day festival. This one is dedicated to the art of YouTube.

The inaugural Buffer Festival, which highlights the work of some of the top creators on Google's video streaming website, comes to Toronto on Nov. 8 and runs for three days. While not household names, the creators behind the YouTube channels CTFXC, Charlie Is So Cool Like, DailyGrace, Jack's Films, The Fine Brothers and MysteryGuitarMan — all pictured, clockwise from top left — as well as Prank vs Prank, Schmoyoho, IISuperwomanII and What the Buck? each have more than one million subscribers who have signed up to see everything they post online.

"In 2011, YouTube was definitely something that everyone knew about, but I think in 2013 it's something that everybody not only knows about but is starting to respect and the public is starting to become aware of what a YouTube celebrity is," said St. Catharines, Ont., native Corey Vidal, whose company ApprenticeA Productions is spearheading the festival. LIFE HAPPENS BETWEEN COMMERCIALS

THE METRO LIST
Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

It's time to gather around the virtual water cooler for this week's Metro List. Here goes:

1 Shutdown rerun. Is the U.S. government really shut down, or is this just an uncanny re-enactment of a 2003 episode of The West Wing, called, naturally, Shutdown? Let's hope life imitates art and they get this thing solved before the commercial break.

2 True patriot love for everyone. Not just all "thy sons," as in O Canada. Prominent Canadians Margaret Atwood and former PM-for-a-day Kim Campbell want to change the national anthem to "true patriot love in all of us command." Benefits: gender neutrality and one less "thy." Drawbacks: it still doesn't make much sense.

3 Speaking of patriots. The author of The Hunt for Red October and Patriot Games may have died this week at 66, but Tom Clancy the brand lives on. His 17th novel, Command Authority, is due out in time for Christmas, and there's a new movie — Shadow One — featuring his main character, Jack Ryan, due for release at the same time. The former insurance salesman had 100 million books in print and left a fortune worth $300 million on the strength of a single plot line: America wins. It's fiction, after all.

4 50 shades of red in the face. Believe it or not, 52,500 people (so far) have signed a petition protesting the selection of screen newcomers Dakota Johnson and Charlie Hunnam to play the heroine and hero of turgid bondage fantasy 50 Shades of Grey, preferring Alexis Bledel and Matt Bomer instead. Whoever they are. Fans have even put together fake trailers of the two in the lead roles. Bledel is reported to be flattered and more than a little freaked out to be so honoured. Imagine how Dakota and Charlie feel: What, we're not kinky enough?

5 Jacques Parizeau, enlightenment philosopher. Even the politically tone-deaf Parti Québécois must realize it's in trouble when the party's notorious grouch emeritus gives thumbs-down to the proposed charter banning religious dress such as burkas and paraphernalia such as kirpans from the public-service workplace. Even he, who once blamed "ethnic votes" for losing an election, says it goes too far. Although Parizeau is a former PQ premier, that doesn't cut any ice with party brass, who are all shrugging in harmony. They'll "consider" his comments, says a spokesperson, as well as the other 25,000 comments left on the PQ website.

6 Well, she's, like, really old or something. It says something about our health-care system when a hospital sends a 90-year-old blind woman home in a taxi in a rain storm, wrapped in a bed sheet, dressed only in her PJs and slippers, bleeding and alone at 2:30 a.m. Something that cannot be repeated in a family newspaper. B.C.'s Premier Christy Clark expressed concern and Fraser Health authority has apologized to Vivian Fitzpatrick, but really? They should be made to eat hospital food after awakening her at that hour for no reason at all.

Damselflies hold legs in cute picture

These vividly coloured damselflies look like they are on a romantic date, seemingly holding each other while cuddling up with a flower.

Italian photographer Alberto Ghizzi Panizza spotted these cute insects near the River Po in the Po Valley, Italy. He took shots of the damselflies shortly after dawn as they rested on wild flowers. METRO

Q and A

'Jostling for a position to rest'

ALBERTO GHIZZI PANIZZA
Photographer, 38, from Parma, Italy

What is their normal behaviour?
They rest alone on flowers to dry their wings, which get covered in early-morning dew, so the insects are in fact competing for rights to that resting spot. They look like they are affectionately holding "hands" but in truth the bugs are just jostling for a position to rest.

What does the photograph have to tell us?
Beneath every wildlife photograph is the message that we should always respect nature.

This is a bug's life

- There are 5,000 species of Odonata (damselflies and dragonflies) — the scientific name meaning 'toothed ones' due to the insects' mandibles. They are carnivorous and hunt spiders and tiny fish.
- Odonata look the same as they did in the Jurassic era, about 135 million years ago.

Synopsis

This is a spacey story about medical engineer Dr. Ryan Stone (Sandra Bullock) and astronaut Matt Kowalsky (George Clooney). She's an uptight novice; he's a wisecracking vet on his final mission. It's routine stuff until a debris storm, comprised of bits and pieces of old satellites, crashes into their space shuttle. Stone is knocked "off structure" and drifting through the inky darkness while Kowalsky uses his experience and calm to rescue her. The storm has also knocked their communications offline and they are forced to become Space MacGyvers in order to survive.

Gravity. A story of isolation is couched in beautiful cinematography

Richard: Mark, Gravity is an ambitious film. From a technical point of view it's a wild outer space adventure, but it is grounded by Ryan Stone's personal story and her search to find meaning in her life. It's not an epic like 2001: A Space Odyssey or an outright horror film like Alien. There are no monsters or face hugging ETs. It's not even a movie about life or death. Instead it is a life-affirming movie about the will to survive. What did you think?

Mark: Richard, I think the movie is about our deepest fear: the fear of being alone. Sandra Bullock is literally adrift and detached from everything and the effect is powerful. It may take place in space but reminded me of films like Castaway and 127 Hours.

RC: It does have a lot in common with those movies, plus some mind-bending special effects. The isolation of space is well portrayed, the "off structure" sequences are tense and effective and the shots of Bullock drifting in the inky darkness or floating through her space shuttle are beautiful, like interstellar ballet. As effective as the human story is in Gravity, however, I could almost imagine turning the sound down and being content to just watch the pictures. Like Laser Floyd in Space. What did you think of Bullock?

MB: She was great; very moving. But it's the cinematography that's the real star. Pure visual poetry. If there were ever a movie that deserved to be seen in 3D IMAX this is it. But the music was kind of overwrought, wasn't it?

RC: It's strange, but I don't really remember the music. There is no sound in space, I guess. For me the movie is all about the visual beauty. The 17-minute-long uninterrupted shot that starts the film is spectacular and overall the look will make your eyeballs dance, although I wonder though if it isn't just a bit too in love with its technique in places. There's a scene where we see Bullock reflected in one of her own, gravity free, tears. It's a great image but one that feels a bit too clever. It was one of the few times in the film that I thought I was watching a special effect.

MB: I noticed the tears too, although I was just grateful she didn't have a runny nose.

Thriller

Byzantium

Director. Neil Jordan

Stars. Gemma Arterton, Saoirse Ronan

Make no mistake, director Neil Jordan's hypnotic Byzantium is indeed a towering, blood spattered and feverishly erotic work of high art. In it, Gemma Arterton and Saoirse Ronan star as lost girls, mother and daughter vampires who hole up in the titular seaside hotel running afoul of an ancient bloodsucking sect. Only a dip into convention at the climax hampers this beautifully shot film; otherwise it's a must-see.

CHRIS ALEXANDER

Drama

The Spectacular Now

Director. James Ponsoldt

Stars. Miles Teller, Shailene Woodley

The Spectacular Now may be this generation's The Breakfast Club. It's by no means as funny — it doesn't intend to be — but similar themes (and even the tidy use of an essay as an epilogue) are definitely present. In the film, a charming teen reluctantly falls for his rebound girlfriend even as he battles burgeoning alcoholism and a fuzzy future. Deftly directed by James Ponsoldt (Smashed), few films deal with teenage drama with such skilled tenderness.

Tom Clancy had some Hollywood hate

Author regrets. Deceased thriller writer liked the exposure when his books turned to films, but hated the lack of creative control

Harrison Ford was one of many actors who played Jack Ryan.
CONTRIBUTED

Jack Ryan is the sort of American hero that's been a screen staple since the silent era. Harrison Ford, Alec Baldwin and Ben Affleck have all played the fictional CIA analyst, and Chris Pine joins the list when Jack Ryan: Shadow One opens on Christmas Day.

The character was Tom Clancy's version of an American James Bond, said Gregg Kilday, film editor for The Hollywood Reporter.

Clancy, who died Tuesday at age 66, "wrote these very solid, meat-and-potatoes thrillers," Kilday said.

"They offered up a lot of material that directors and actors could work with in fashioning straightforward, semi-patriotic espionage and action-adventure movies."

Each adaptation was a hit: The Hunt for Red October, Patriot Games, Clear and Present Danger and The Sum of All Fears.

But despite the success, the author's relationship with Hollywood was often contentious. While he enjoyed the exposure, he regretted the lack of creative control.

"Giving your book to Hollywood is like turning your daughter over to a pimp," he famously said.

"He took potshots at a number of films," Kilday noted.

"He didn't like that movies like Clear and Present Danger and Patriot Games didn't simply reproduce the plots of his novels," which were too complex to fit into a two-hour screenplay.

Clancy also criticized Ford's casting in those two films, saying the actor was too old to play Ryan, but appreciated Affleck's portrayal in 2002's The Sum of All Fears.

Affleck told the Los Angeles Times that Clancy's realism made his books, and their film adaptations, successful.

"When you read one of his books, you had the distinct feeling that he was depicting military or espionage situations exactly as they really are," Affleck said.

Machete Kills, but Machete also rescues dogs

Danny Trejo. Despite his rough exterior, this character actor is just a big old teddy bear

liz.brown@metronews.ca

When Hollywood needs someone to play a badass Mexican, the only guy to call is Danny Trejo.

With his craggy face, pony tail and chest tattoo of a sombrero-clad woman, he's the kind of hombre that would make plump pasty Gringos run back to the border on those loco toe-dipping trips to Tijuana.

And he doesn't just have the look for these roles, he's got the resumé too. Highlights include past drug addiction and multiple stints in prison. He spent time in San Quentin in the 1960s and at one point during a riot threw a rock that struck a prison official — during that time a gas chamber offence.

But he's come a long way from those dark days. The sequel to Machete — his first leading-role film — hits theatres next Friday.

Machete Kills sees Trejo (a.k.a. Machete) in the employ of the quippy U.S. President (Charlie Sheen). His mission? To shut down a psycho billionaire arms dealer (Mel Gibson) intent on blowing up the world.

A 12-step program followed by a series of serendipitous events led Trejo to this new life — it's a change he attributes to the "grace of God."

"Every morning I wake up is an absolute blessing and every night I go to bed is an absolute blessing," he says in a phone interview from his home in L.A.'s San Fernando Valley.

At 69 years old, Trejo's interests have moved from prison brawling to golf and his rescue dogs.

Today, he's supervising a team of workers who are installing a driving range in his backyard.

"I'm doing a sitcom with George Lopez right now called Saint George and he gave me a set of golf clubs so it's like, 'Let's learn how to golf,'" he says.

Machete Kills opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

There's a pause, a crash and raucous barking.

"HEY! YOU STOP THAT."

In another minute he's back on the line. "I have the most disobedient dogs in the world. I've got six of them. I just rescue them. I think they were all going to the gas chamber too," he laughs.

But back to Machete and all his other characters, like that knife-thrower in Desperado who takes down Steve Buscemi and almost ends Antonio Banderas.

That scene changed my life. It was so damn cool, I gush.

He laughs again.

"I can throw a knife, but you gotta remember that's movie magic, and (director Robert Rodriguez) is the best at it."

Apparently Machete is better at throwing double-headed axes. "I'm really good at that," he insists.

But for all his tough guy swagger, Machete isn't invincible.

"I had a sword fight with Mel Gibson in this movie and when Robert Rodriguez said, 'Action,' I threw my sword down and he said, 'What's wrong Danny?' and I said, 'I'm not fighting William Wallace, come on, he saved Scotland, are you crazy?'"

To find out who won that brawny battle, you'll have to check out the film on Oct. 11.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Liam Hemsworth and Miley Cyrus. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Did Miley make Liam the star he is today? It seems Cyrus would say so

While Miley Cyrus and Liam Hemsworth officially split in September, the breakup reportedly dragged out over four months — with Cyrus guilt-tripping Hemsworth for the bulk of it, according to Radar Online. "She was constantly reminding him that she 'helped make him a star' through their movie, The Last Song, and she'd brag that she 'introduced him to the world,'" a source says. "Miley was super-manipulative with Liam and she used the movie to trap and guilt him into staying in a relationship with her."

Dear Miley: Just say no to licking sledgehammers. Love, Sinead

Sinead O'Connor is worried about Miley Cyrus — at least enough to pen an open letter to the Wrecking Ball singer. "I am extremely concerned for you that those around you have led you to believe — or encouraged you in your own beliefs — that it is in any way 'cool' to be naked and licking sledgehammers in your videos," O'Connor writes. "You will obscure your talent by allowing yourself to be pimped, whether it is the music business or yourself doing the pimping. The music business doesn't give a s— about you, or any of us. They will prostitute you for all you are worth and cleverly make you think it's what you wanted, and when you end up in rehab as a result of being prostituted, 'they' will be sunning themselves on their yachts in Antigua, which they bought by selling your body and you will find yourself very alone."

Bynes' parents speak out on misinformed media

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

After months of speculation about Amanda Bynes' whereabouts and treatment, her mother Lynn Bynes has spoken publicly for the first time. "I would really like everyone out there to know that almost 99 per cent of the things written about my daughter in various media outlets are false or misleading," Lynn told People in a statement.

Reports have placed Amanda at various treatment facilities since she was placed in her parents' custody this summer, but Lynn went on to explain that the Bynes family had decided not to release any details on Amanda's condition.

"Please know that neither myself or other family members have ever released any information regarding her treatment or diagnosis. We truly believe in keeping our daughter's situation private for now."

Totally understandable. Let us know if you change your mind and would like to satisfy our nosy, inappropriate curiosity.

We'll be here.

Lynn ended her statement on a note of hope, saying, "Both my husband and I love Amanda very much and we know that she will get through this situation."

The former actress was hospitalized back in July for setting a fire in the driveway of a stranger's home in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

The cops investigated the former child star and determined she needed to be hospitalized on a 5150 hold, which is an involuntary hospitalization for mental evaluation which lasts 72 hours.

Her parents were granted a conservatorship over the troubled young star shortly after that.

Downey Jr.'s junior seeks help for prescription med problems

While Robert Downey Jr. has a lengthy history with substance abuse issues, this is a first for his 20-year-old son, Indio, who is reportedly undergoing rehab treatment for help with prescription pain medication, according to the National Enquirer. Indio's mother, Deborah Falconer, confirms to the publication that Indio is receiving treatment, but "he is not addicted. He was taking one pill a day," she insists, explaining that Indio is receiving "holistic, natural and orthomolecular" therapy. "We are hoping to do it the homeopathic way rather than with medications." The Iron Man star is reportedly not taking the news well. "This is a nightmare for Robert because his boy has never been in trouble before," a source says. "He's praying for Indio's recovery."

Justin Bieber

Sure Bieber's been a bad boy, be we won't be seeing him behind bars

Justin Bieber may be displaying some brash and juvenile behaviour, but it's apparently not enough for him to head to court over. Prosecutors have declined to press charges against the singer over an incident in which he reportedly spat in a neighbour's face after the neighbour confronted him for his reckless driving near his Calabasas, Calif., home, according to E! News. According to the prosecutors' report, Bieber's reaction seemed "disproportionate and immature" but was not necessarily criminal. Bieber also will not be facing charges over a separate reckless driving claim, as there is insufficient evidence that he was behind the wheel of his Ferrari at the time.

Add a little Italian to your seafood stew

Cioppino. This version of the savoury dish tastes just as good as the original, but without all the fat

Seafood Tomato Stew

This recipe serves six. MARK SHAPIRO, FROM ROSE REISMAN BRINGS HOME LIGHT COOKING (MCM BOOKS)

This is the standard Italian soup dish called cioppino, but a little lighter on the calories and fat. One serving contains only 238 calories, six grams of fat and 33 grams of protein.

Not a fan of white fish? Feel free to use any combination of seafood (shrimps and scallops work well) or fish for a great one-dish meal served with a salad or some Italian crusty bread.

Ingredients

- 1 tbsp vegetable oil
- Half medium onion, chopped
- Half celery stalk, chopped
- 1 tsp crushed garlic
- 1/4 lb mushrooms, sliced
- 2 cans tomatoes (each 19 oz), chopped and drained
- 2 tbsp tomato paste
- 1/3 cup white wine or fish stock
- 1 tsp dried oregano
- 1 1/2 tsp dried basil
- 2 bay leaves
- 24 mussels
- 1/2 lb shrimp, peeled and deveined
- 1/2 lb scallops
- 1/2 lb firm white fish (cod, halibut, haddock), cut into bite-sized pieces
- Chopped fresh parsley

1. In a large nonstick saucepan, heat oil; sauté onion, celery, garlic and mushrooms until softened, approximately 5 minutes.

2. Add tomatoes, tomato paste, wine, oregano, basil and bay leaves; cover and simmer for 25 minutes, stirring occasionally.

3. Scrub mussels under cold water; remove any beards. Discard any that do not close when tapped.

4. Add mussels, shrimp, scallops and fish to pot; cover and cook for 5 to 8 minutes or until mussels open, shrimp are pink and scallops and fish are opaque. Discard any mussels that do not open. Discard bay leaves. Serve immediately.

Liquid Assets

Pairing wine with seafood

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

As a proud Maritimer I know my way around a feed of anything that swims, crawls or attaches itself to a rock in the ocean.

As a wine guy, I'm also aware the term "seafood" casts a huge net, gathering hundreds of flavour profiles that make choosing one liquid partner to satisfy them all nearly impossible.

Of course your favourite aquatic inhabitant rarely gets served alone, so consider everything on the plate when looking for a wine mate.

While today's feature recipe may include more fish than an episode of Jacques Cousteau, it's really the tomatoes that put their stamp on the dish.

Though tomatoes can make a temperamental marriage with wine, seafood stew offers a robust-enough personality to go head-to-head with a red offering good acidity and subtle flavours.

An Italian Chianti is a great choice, as would a New World pinot noir. Mirassou Winery's 2011 Pinot Noir ($12.99 - $14.99) from California is ripe, round and fish-friendly with more than enough grip to tame the influential tomato base.

From the food truck to your kitchen

This Pacific Rim Chowder recipe is taken from Eat St., the companion cookbook to the Food Network Canada show of the same name.

1. Drain corn, reserving liquid.

2. In a large pot over medium-high, heat oil. Add corn, onions, carrots, celery, potatoes, garlic, coriander, cumin, salt and pepper. Sauté until vegetables are soft.

3. Add reserved corn liquid, tomatoes, coconut milk, chili sauce, chipotles, hot sauce, Worcestershire sauce and minced cilantro. Simmer for 10 minutes.

4. Stir in fish; simmer for another 5 minutes or until fish is just cooked. Serve garnished with cilantro leaves and green onions.

Simon 'feels normal' in return to BC Place

CFL. Former Lions great back in Vancouver as a member of the rival Roughriders

CAM TUCKER
Metro in Vancouver

Geroy Simon speaks to media at BC Place on Thursday. JENNIFER GAUTHIER/METRO IN VANCOUVER

Geroy Simon entered through the doors at the west end of BC Place Stadium around 3:30 p.m. Thursday, his tiny dog, Pepper, in tow.

Altogether it was a scene of tranquility compared to the atmosphere expected Friday, when Simon will play against the Lions in BC Place for the first time since he was traded from Vancouver to Saskatchewan in January.

Walking out onto the field, even if the stadium was virtually empty compared to what it will be Friday night, was enough to give No. 81 "chills."

"It feels good. It feels like home. I'm excited to be here, I'm excited to be able to have the opportunity to play tomorrow," said Simon, who spent 12 seasons with the Lions.

"I'm here as a visitor but it still feels normal."

Now well into his 15th season in the league, Simon became the CFL's all-time leader in career catches last weekend, when he set the new mark of 1,020 receptions, surpassing the old mark set by Ben Cahoon.

Simon said he didn't quite know what kind of reception he would get from the fans — Friday's crowd could reach the 40,000 mark. Yet it's almost impossible to think he wouldn't get anything but a standing ovation.

"This is a place where he's made a name for himself, where he basically became the greatest wide receiver of all time," said Roughriders quarterback Darian Durant. "So I'm pretty sure early on it's going to be emotional but I think once he gets into the flow of things, it's going to be another football game for him."

Not only did 904 of his career catches — some spectacular, others memorable — come while he was with the Lions, but he had become an ambassador for the team and the league on and off the field.

"It's really, really, really rare to have a great player play a long time and also entrench himself into the community," said Lions veteran centre Angus Reid on Wednesday.

DeMarco acing all starting QB tests

Mike Benevides believes the toughest test for a young quarterback comes in his second start.

"Game No. 1 you're just trying to get through it," the BC Lions head coach said Thursday. "Game No. 2 you know you're the starter. There's a lot of different things. The opponent has some tape on you."

Thomas DeMarco not only survived his second professional start last week, he improved to 2-0 and will be going for a third straight win Friday night when the Lions host the Saskatchewan Roughriders in a key West Division matchup at BC Place Stadium.

The 24-year-old from Palm Desert, Calif., who saw limited action as the Lions' third-string quarterback last season, has been thrown into the fire the last two weeks with starter Travis Lulay nursing a shoulder injury.

"He's a tremendous competitor. Everything he's ever had to do, he's had to overcome (adversity)," Benevides said of DeMarco. "He has tremendous poise. He has a way that the game's not too big for him. He's got a way to stay humble and stay loose and relaxed.

"There's no doubt experience is not in his favour but what he's done has been quite amazing."

DeMarco said that making his first two starts on the road, including a 24-22 victory over the Roughriders (8-5) in Regina and a 53-17 blowout of the Blue Bombers in Winnipeg last week, has been beneficial.

"I feel a little more comfortable.… Whether you're home or away you're going to have those nerves," said DeMarco, whose team is 6-0 at BC Place. "You're going to have that anxiety to get in there and play well.

"The biggest thing is the longer I'm in there, the more comfortable I'm going to get."

Cardinals ride big third inning to sink Pirates' ship

MLB playoffs. St. Louis rocks Burnett to take Game 1 of NLDS

Carlos Beltran, Adam Wainwright and the St. Louis Cardinals gave Pittsburgh a quick reality jolt.

Beltran's three-run homer sparked a seven-run third inning Thursday and the Cardinals got seven stingy innings from Wainwright to open their NL division series with a 9-1 rout of the Pirates.

"To be able to get out on a good first step and play well today I think is big for our guys confidence-wise," St. Louis manager Mike Matheny said. "Gives us an opportunity to just take some momentum, and momentum is big right now when you talk about a five-game series."

The first eight Cardinals reached safely in the third to chase A.J. Burnett, saddling the right-hander with the second-shortest outing of his career and putting Game 1 out of reach early.

A sellout crowd roared and then settled in for an easy victory by the NL Central champions, making their third consecutive trip to the post-season.

"Game 164 was rough," Pirates manager Clint Hurdle said. "One of the things we've been good at is we don't overcook things."

All he does is win

Adam Wainwright remained unbeaten in the post-season, going to 3-0 with a 2.27 ERA in 14 games, five of them starts.

- Wainwright allowed a run on three hits in seven innings, striking out nine without a walk. The only damage came on a homer by Pedro Alvarez to start the fifth.
- The right-hander tied for the NL lead with 19 wins this year and was 4-0 in his last five starts.
- Wainwright also started the Cards' big burst with a leadoff, full-count walk.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Your heart will point you in the right direction today and if you are smart you won't ask questions, you will just go where it tells you to go

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You probably won't get a lot of free time today and over the weekend, so make sure others know you are going to be busy.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Nothing and no one can stand between you and your goal, but don't get carried away. More important than success is that you reach it appropriately, playing by the rules and helping others along the way.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Petty squabbles could easily get out of hand over the next two or three days, so make it a point of honor to control your temper.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Travel and socialize as much as possible today and over the weekend, because the new moon will introduce you to people and places that bring a smile to your face. Life is good and about to get even better.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
A new moon in the financial area of your chart means you will get what you deserve, nothing more and nothing less. It's not all about money, of course, but it's a pretty good way of measuring how successful you've been.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
You will be feeling on top of the world today, and with every good reason. The approaching new moon in your sign means that happy days are here again.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
It would be foolish to try to bluff your way out of trouble when there really isn't that much at stake. If you have made a mistake then admit it – and maybe follow up with an aggressively Scorpio "so what?".

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You will find it difficult to play by the rules today, especially if other people egg you on to do something outrageous.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Important people expect you to deliver and you must not let them down. You may have to burn the candle at both ends in order to meet your obligations on time but you'll be glad you did, so get on with it.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
A new moon in your fellow Air sign of Libra means you can easily escape tasks you don't want to do and people you don't want to get involved with.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Keep your eyes and ears open and, above all, keep an open mind because an offer that comes your way out of the blue is not to be missed.
